Launching Gliders
Sultan and Medicine Man
Back Yard Beer Gardens
45 Years Alone

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 4—An airplane with no engine was successfully launched from the dirigible Los Angeles, 3,000 feet up. Lieut. Ralph S. Barnaby, who weighs 140 pounds, sat in the 200-pound glider, maneuvering it with no power to turn it, over the Lakehurst field, making the field 12 times.

* * *

That is more than an interesting experiment. In case of war dirigibles or other ships off our coast could launch such lightweight gliders, by the dozen, aimed to drop gas on our city. That would not be amusing.

The gas would not weigh much. Gliders would land on city roofs or lawns, and deposit loads of gas with their drivers, no human pilot on board.

LONDON sends word that nine surviving widows and 35 children of Abdul Hamid, former sultan of Turkey, have recovered fifty million dollars of the late sultan's fortune, which amounted to fifteen hundred million dollars.

The fifty million for the nine widows must have been deposited outside Turkey. Mustapha Kemal, running the Turkish republic very ably, would send no such contribution to those women and their children.

* * *

As certain as the sultan's wives, survivors and harem, is news from Arizona, that the Navajo Indians are going to start a dance to drive out the "death devil."

The best medicine man of the tribe, Hosea Chiscoll, is 102 years old, and fears he will die unless his leaves frighten the "death devil" with an extraordinarily vicious dance.

Whether in frenzy about a great pine, the braves nearly killed will spread flaming pitch over their bodies, and the "death's devil" is expected to retire. Then the medicine man will rise from his bed of buffalo robes and carry on.

* * *

Those who smile at the idea of driving a death devil. But their religion tells of devils driven from the bodies of those possessed. Different methods.

We should respect all religious and all medicine men.

A DRY authority says it is not against the law to brew beer at home, prohibition simply says you may not transport beer or sell it.

Probably some higher authority will overrule that.

Establish the fact that home breweries are legal, and the brewing industry would be stimulated extensively in the United States.

Any home with a back yard could become a beer garden, and prohibition agents would be compelled not only to obtain beer as evidence, but also prove that the beer had been bought and paid for.

Forty-five years ago, a French Catholic priest, Father Jean, entered a little cell of the Catholic Church of St. Antoine, in Constantinople, making a vow never to come out alive.

He has kept that vow. Devout Catholics leave food, clothing, books, newspapers at the door of his cell. If does not see them, and has never seen trolleys, automobiles, although he hears the noise they make.

If 50 years of solitude and self-denial is sufficient, as the good father believes, to insure an eternity of happiness, the sacrifice seems small.

It may turn out that Providence isn't especially interested in having us mortify the flesh and treats us all alike on the judgment day, if we have behaved. But even then the good father may consider himself more fortunate than the average. He has had time to think and meditate.

A YOUNG engineer from Venezuela writes "within five years holes will be sunk or bored in the earth to depths of 50,000 feet or greater, supplying oils, minerals, water, heat and power.

"The deepest well in the world is less than 10,000 feet in depth. No man living knows what is below 10,000 feet. We talk of flying to the moon in rockets, etc. Let us first find out something about the planet we are living on."

* * *

This writer once talked to a man with 1,000 millions about drilling into the earth for inexhaustible supplies of heat and power. The shaft would probably require a depth of 150,000 feet and would cost about $30,000,000.

* * *

There is no prospect of its being done, for the present, but a day may come when governments will worry about exhausting the world's interior heat supply, as they worry now about exhausting and wasting the oil supply.

AH, FOILED AGAIN!

Chicago Coppers Find a Bomb in Auto—But, Oh Shoot!

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—Edward A. Leroy was seized here today when police found a "bomb" in his car consisting of a lenden pipe with an electric fuse attached.

He was lectured long and well upon the subject of what the courts would do to him.

"Don't be silly," said Lelloy calmly. "The pipe is a ground for my radio set and the wire is my lead-in."

The chagrined coppers did not arrest him.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE IN BLAZE

Trapped in Three-Room Tar-Papered House Near South Bend, Ind.

HUGHES NAMED CHIEF JUSTICE OF U. S. COURT

Appointment Hailed as Move To Preserve Conservative Tenor of Body

SUCCEEDS TAFT

Advancement of Harlan Fiske Stone Had Been Expected at Capital

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—Appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice today was hailed with satisfaction by those who regard the conservative tenor of the court's constitutional interpretations as a bulwark of strength for the nation.

Having helped to establish many precedents which govern decisions on modern day problems while a justice of the court from 1910 to 1926, the regime of Mr. Hughes, it was predicted, will follow the trend which marked the chief justiceship of William Howard Taft.

In selecting Mr. Hughes for the high post, President Hoover surprised many officials who were certain that a change would elevate Associate Justice Harlan Fiske Stone to the post. Stone is a close personal friend.

With the court sharply divided, 6 to 3, in many vital constitutional decisions in the past three years, the first appointment to the court of Mr. Hoover occasioned unusually wide comment among lawyers and officials. Occasionally the court has divided, 5 to 4.

The majority of the court, including Chief Justice Taft, Justices Vandeventer, McReynolds, Butler, Sutherland, and Sanford have frequently been at odds with Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone.

The appointment of a justice in sympathy with the three dissenting justices, it was pointed out, might have vitally affected many close decisions of vast importance.

The clearage in the court has found its chief expression over methods of valuing public utilities and the extent to which states can go in enacting legislation without violating the federal constitution.

Arguments of Mr. Hughes in many important cases before the high tribunal in the last two years have indicated he believes in the tenets of the majority of the court.

SCHOOL NOTES SOLD TO COLUMBUS BANK

$450,000 Loan Negotiated for Building Work; School Depositories Named

Nearly a half million dollars worth of city school board notes will be sold to the BancOhio of Columbus, as a result of action taken last night at the monthly meeting of the board.

The Columbus institution's bid of one and one-half per cent with accrued interest was considered the best of the two bids offered for $450,000 worth of one-year notes. The notes will be dated Feb. 15 and at the end of a year will be taken up with the issue of bonds. The loan is a part of the $750,000 authorized by a vote of the people for building purposes.

Another bid of six per cent with a premium of $910 was offered by a Toledo bond house.

The board received bids from five Marion banks last night for depositories for the next two years.

The bid for inactive funds, or undisturbed balances for three months, was three and one-half per cent interest. This is a reduction of one-half per cent under the rate paid during the preceding two years. The rate for active funds will remain at two and one-half per cent. All five banks offered the board the same interest rate. All city banks will be made depositories for the next two years.

LINDY PUTS GLIDER DOWN AFTER MISHAP

Receives Congratulations on His Safe Landing and His 28th Anniversary

SANDBERG, Cal., Feb. 4—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today was receiving dual congratulations. He was being felicitated upon his twenty-eighth birthday anniversary and also upon his narrow escape from death near here yesterday when an aileron on the glider he was piloting dropped to the ground, leaving the famous airman 200 feet in the air with an unwieldy glider.

Lindbergh made no immediate attempt to bring the glider to earth after the mishap. He sailed out of sight, while friends on the ground rushed after him apprehensively. He was found four miles from his starting place.

"Yes, it was an uncomfortable feeling when I saw it fall," said Lindbergh, "but I let the glider sail with the currents. I had a little trouble in landing. I am going to try it again as soon as conditions are favorable."

Taft Back In Capital; Is Very Sick Man

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—William Howard Taft, sick and pale, returned to the capital early today as an ordinary citizen.

His train arrived in Union station at 7:05 a. m., but it was 25 minutes more before Dr. Francis Hagner, his physician, and others, had virtually carried the former president of the United States and, until yesterday, chief justice of the United States supreme court, from his Pullman seat to his automobile.

"Mr. Taft is a very sick man," the physician said.

He accompanied Taft to his home and remained there for an hour or so. When he left he told reporters his patient was in no immediate danger. He will make another examination of Taft at noon.

Taft came from Asheville, N. C., where he had gone in search of strength three weeks ago. Before leaving, he spent 10 days in a hospital here. The southern climate did not bene his condition as he expected and his illness prompted him to send his resignation as chief justice of the supreme court to President Hoover yesterday.

The train came in on a lower track. Taft was too weak to mount the steps or even to be carried any great distance so Dr. Hagner had the car in which he was riding, shifted to a track at the street level. Meanwhile, Mrs. Taft remained beside her husband. Miss Gertrude Manifold, his nurse, also was in constant attendance.

He seemed dazed as he was carried from the train. There was a set stare in his eyes as though he was hardly conscious of what was going on. His once huge body was noticeably shrunken from his illness.

A porter and a railroad policeman assisted the nurse in getting Taft to the rear platform. Here, he was placed in a chair and

TELLS PLANS FOR EXPANSION

Lincoln Says Farm Bureau Will Take Advantage of Federal Aid

STATE MEETING HELD

Decide on Farm Grain Marketing Corporation as National Unit

COLUMBUS, Feb. 4—A program of expansion and enlargement during 1930 that is expected not only to benefit the farm people of Ohio, but city dwellers as well, was outlined for the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation by Murray D. Lincoln, secretary, before delegates to the eleventh annual meeting here today.

While this organization was holding its convention in a downtown hotel, nearly 2,000 farmers and visitors were attending the second day's sessions of the eighteenth annual "Farmers' Week" celebration at Ohio State university. The two meetings are being held jointly.

Lincoln, in his address, told of plans for taking advantage of the assistance which was offered to agriculture as an organization by the federal farm board.

These plans included establishment of a farm grain marketing corporation, a farm finance or credit corporation, possible erection of a new state headquarters building and the possible purchase of operation of a mill to manufacture farm bureau feeds.

"The proposed grain marketing corporation," Lincoln said, "would be a unit in the national grain marketing corporation, which was recently set up by the federal farm board. The national grain marketing corporation is composed of territorial units and the proposed Ohio corporation would be a part of the eastern unit.

The suggested credit corporation would make it possible for the individual farmer to obtain loans. Under the federal farm board plan, loans are granted only to cooperative organizations and not to individuals, Lincoln explained.

Committees have already been appointed to investigate the steps which are necessary for the organization of the grain and credit corporations.

The proposed new headquarters building would be located on the site of the two buildings which now house the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. here.

REPORT 1,000 REBELS KILLED IN FIGHTING

National and Kwangsi Troops in Series of Engagements North of Wuchow

LONDON, Feb. 4 — War clouds again hovered darkly over the eastern horizon with heavy casualties reported in a series of engagements between National and Kwangsi troops north of Wuchow, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hong Kong stated today.

The Nationalists attempting to exterminate the rebel Kwangsi factions in the Wuchow area north of Canton claim that more than 1,000 rebels have been killed or wounded. Estimates of the Nationalist casualties have been made but they are believed to be large.

In recognition of the serious opposition still furnished by the rebel troops, President Chiang Kai Shek is expected to go to Canton soon to take personal charge of his troops. Two divisions of human troops are already enroute to reinforce the Nationalist armies in the Wuchow district.

BACK SEAT DRIVER

Devices in Back of Car Will Operate Machine at Command

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—"Forward march!"

"Back up!"

"Whoa!"

Out in Pittsburgh at 3 o'clock this afternoon H. P. Davis, vice president of an electric company, will give the above commands or words to that effect and here in New York an automobile in a show window on Broadway will go ahead, back up and stop.

Mr. Davis' voice will set up sound waves in New York as his words travel over long distance telephone wires and these sound waves in turn will be picked up by an electric eye or photo electric cell placed in the trunk in the rear of the automobile. As he speaks the car will obey his commands.

Anyway, it's a good trick whether he does it or not.

STAGE VET HAPPY AND "YOUNG" AT 66

Frank Dean, Old-Timer of Myrtyl Ross Players, Receives Tributes of Associates on Anniversary

Sixty-six years young, and with 50 years on the stage to his credit.

This morning, that was the thought that gave Frank Dean, of the Myrtyl Ross Players, such a happy smile and congenial "before breakfast" mood.

Almost 50 years ago he started out in life, doing a bit in "Lady of Lyons," playing at Canton, N. Y. Since that time he has played in every state in the union, and in Newfoundland.

Tent shows and circuses never fell to his lot, but there were a few weeks in and near Detroit, when he and his wife, the former Lillian Lyons, did sketches in vaudeville.

Most of Mr. Dean's 50 years in the theater have been with stock companies. He might be considered a "Dean of stock companies."

Those who know anything of the history of the Myrtyl Ross players, know that it was Mr. Dean who started her in the show business.

Remembered by Associates

All day yesterday, the members of the company drifted to Mr. Dean's dressing room with some remembrance for him, and a word of congratulations. It was not formally announced, but rumor has it that Ernest Sharpsteen, Dean's "crony," gave him a very lovely pipe, one that promises to have a tobacconish aroma in three days.

Last year when he was here with the company, Mr. Dean gave an interview to The Star, in which he told at length of his experiences in the theater, some of the funny as well as some of the serious sides of the life.

With his engagement with the Players this year, Dean rounded out approximately eight years with Myrtyl Ross and her company.

Set before him at his breakfast this morning was a half grapefruit, two eggs, fried potatoes, three slices of toast, and coffee. That doesn't sound as if his 66 years were telling on him.

FRANK DEAN

"I don't feel a bit older this morning than I did 20 years ago," he declared.

Talks of Theater Trend

Of course, theater talk led to the evolution of the legitimate stage and the talkies. Personally, Mr. Dean said, he liked most talkies.

"The reason for the slump in the legitimate stage is that people can't get to it," he declared, and went on to explain:

"If people who live in big cities want to see a stage play, they must go a great distance uptown and spend $1 or $5 for a ticket. Instead, they visit the talkies at the neighborhood houses, and the stage suffers."

Although he was born in Owosso, Mich., Mr. Dean's early boyhood was spent in New York state.

Colorful Ceremony Marks Royal Japanese Wedding

Brother of Emperor Is Married to Descendant of Powerful House That Once Ruled Nation; Ritual Performed in Imperial Palace

TOKIO, Feb. 4—In a ritual ceremony prescribed by tradition, Prince Takamatsu, younger brother of the Japanese emperor, and Kikuko Tokugawa, 18-year-old descendant of the powerful house which once ruled Japan, were united in marriage today.

The ceremony was witnessed only by princes and princesses of the blood, relatives of the bride and courtiers in charge of the ritual proceedings.

Sacred cups of sake and rice wine were exchanged by the couple before the Kashikodokoro ("Place of Awe") in the imperial palace as the spirit of the sun goddess Amaterasu, divine ancestor of the emperors of Japan was invoked. All present were the ancient robes of court prescribed for the ceremony.

The wedding joined the imperial house with the Shoguns of the house of Tokugawa who ruled Japan for two and a half centuries while the emperors lived in seclusion. Keiki, last of the Shoguns, who returned the power to the emperor in 1868, was the grandfather of the bride.

The 25-year-old prince, who is an accomplished art connoisseur and sportsman, and his bride, will spend a year abroad on their wedding trip.

They will leave for England on May 21.

SETTLEMENT HALTS DAMAGE SUIT TRIAL

Jury Dismissed in City Court in Litigation Over Auto Accident

Jury trial of the damage suit of William J. Roberts against Lowell George and Louis Francis was started late yesterday when a settlement was effected.

Although a jury had been called in municipal court, and the state was set for the trial, the afternoon was spent in conference, which resulted in a settlement last night.

Terms of the settlement, which involved other angles than those brought out in the actual suit for $421 damages, were not made known today.

The suit was the outgrowth of an accident last fall in which three cars figured. Mrs. Roberts was sitting in Mr. Roberts' parked car, when autos driven by George and Francis nicked fenders and sent George's car into that of Roberts. The cars were considerably damaged, and Mrs. Roberts was injured.

Roberts, the plaintiff, was represented by the law firm of Garhart & Warner; George was represented by the law firm of Wiedemann, Patton & Wiedemann; and the law firm of Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant represented Louis Francis and an interested insurance company.

WAY PAVED TO SATISFY ITALY

Nation Favors Franco-British Compromise with Planned Changes

PROCEDURE DISCUSSED

Gibson Objects to Attempt To Limit Small Cruiser Tonnage

LONDON, Feb. 4—Definite progress was made by the five-power naval disarmament conference today in bringing about a harmonious outlook among the various delegations as to how to proceed with the delicate question of limiting armaments.

During the course of a two-hour meeting at St. James' palace this morning, the way was paved to bring Italy into alignment on the Franco-British compromise proposal for limitation. A spokesman for the Italian delegation declared that the compromise, with the changes embodied in the British counter-proposal, is far more satisfactory than it was before and "less calculated to engender competitive building."

Ambassador Gibson made one reservation to the British proposals, objecting to the British attempt to put a maximum tonnage limitation for individual small cruisers armed with six-inch guns and less.

Following this conference, the "Big five" heads of the delegations met at the palace to discuss further procedure. It was decided that private conversations between the delegates must continue, and named this end another meeting was scheduled for 6 p. m. tomorrow.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, American delegation chief, is holding a private conference with Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation, this afternoon.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams represented the United States at this morning's committee meeting at St. James' palace.

SEIZES NEWSPAPERS, FACES FINE OR JAIL

Man Threatened with 60 Days in Prison; Commission Controls Publication

SPARTANSBURG, S. C., Feb. 4—Sixty days in jail or a fine of $600 was the alternative faced today by William LaVarre, publisher of a chain of southern newspapers, as a result of his seizure of the Spartanburg Journal and Herald yesterday after the papers had been placed in the hands of a federal court commission.

The newspapers were turned over to the commission, pending the settlement of long litigation between LaVarre and his former partner, Harold Hall. LaVarre asserted he seized the newspapers yesterday in behalf of the Piedmont Press association, which, he said, took a long time lease on the property even before the Hall-LaVarre litigation began.

CLOTHING INDUSTRY IS HIT BY STRIKE

Call Issued to 35,000 Garment Workers; First Arrests Are Made

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—The garment strike went on today, indirectly affecting the entire clothing industry of America.

The first arrests were of two strikers armed with sawed-off billiard cues. A number of men and women workers here were taken to police stations for distributing handbills.

The strike call was issued to 35,000 garment workers, the majority being women.

The exodus began a few hours after the clothing workers reported to their jobs. The number who answered the call cannot be estimated perhaps for several days.

Man's Skull Is Fractured in Tilt with Patrolman

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 4—Guy (Willie) Green, of Gary, W. Va., near here, is in a local hospital with a fractured skull, and Patrolman Vaught Gilkerson is under suspension today, awaiting an official investigation into his alleged assault on Green.

The patrolman accused Green of being intoxicated and the former grid star denied the charge.

Green weighs 150 pounds, and Gilkerson tips the scales at 220.

BANDITS ROB MANSION, WAIT THERE 10 HOURS

Terrorize Chicagoans as They Collect Jewelry, Silverware and Antiques

POSE AS POLICEMEN

Sit, Chat and Smoke Until 5 A. M. Before Deciding To Leave with Loot

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—Bandits posing as policemen invaded the home of Edward Mallers, well known in society circles at Kenilworth, fashionable North Shore suburb, terrorized the entire household for 10 hours, systematically collected jewelry, silverware, clothing and antiques and escaped with loot valued at more than $20,000 today.

The men drew guns and herded the maid, nurse, cook and two of Mallers' children into a bedroom. When Mr. and Mrs. Mallers arrived home from a late dinner party, they too were forced into a bedroom while other robbers ransacked the house.

Loot Piled High

The loot was piled high in the rear of a large automobile in which the bandits escaped.

The robbers first appeared at the Mallers' mansion at 7 p. m. last night and told a maid they were policemen seeking burglars reported in the house. The maid admitted them and was then confronted with sawed-off shotguns.

"They took the maid and the other domestics to a bedroom upstairs," said Mallers. "My two children, Edward Jr., 4, and Williams, 1, were in the hands of their nurse. One of the men remained in the room with them while the others went through the house.

Smoke and Chat

"Mrs. Mallers and myself arrived home about 2:30 this morning. As we stepped in the door one of the men showed a gun into my ribs and ordered us to go upstairs. Another soldier met the chauffeur at the front door.

"After collecting the articles the bandits waited until 5 o'clock this morning before deciding to leave. They smoked and chatted among themselves. They were all well dressed and had good manners. I believe they have been watching the home for the last three weeks."

Canadian Rum Runner "After" Dry Patrolmen

DETROIT, Feb. 4—Arthur LaFramboise, 38, wounded Canadian rum runner, declared war today on the American federal dry patrolmen who, he asserts, shot him and left him on the river ice to die.

"I have a permit to carry a gun," rasped LaFramboise on his bed in Hotel Dieu hospital at Windsor, "and when I get out of here I'm going to take my friends and go gunning for those birds if I find them in Canadian waters."

LaFramboise also declared he will make an official report of the shooting to provincial police today.

PAGEANT WILL BE GIVEN BY BAPTISTS

To Follow Business Meeting at Trinity Church Wednesday Night

A business meeting to vote on the amendment of two articles of the constitution of Trinity Baptist church, to be held Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the church, will be followed by a pageant, "As I Have Loved," by Coe Hayne, under the direction of Miss Elsie Barrar.

The pageant is based upon "The Transit," a Baptist magazine published by the Northern Baptist Convention, and widely circulated through all the Baptist churches of the northern district.

The pageant has a setting of the present time in an American home to which a stranger comes and brings in vision, through "The Transit," which he represents, a story of the needs and medical work being done in India, the Christian education in the Philippines, and the Americanization work in the home and city missions.

In the American family the characters are portrayed by Mrs. Z. F. Davis, H. F. LeMasters, Ralph Davis, and Doris Fogleson. Dale Gorman will take the role of the stranger.

Those taking part in the scene of India are Isabelle Uncapher, Marie Hammer, Mabel Hastings, T. J. Moon, Helen Uncapher, and Clara Uncapher. Clara Uncapher, Mrs. Jordan, Ila Brinsley, Florence Fout, Mary Lyman, Mary Burich, and Norma Lyter are in the second scene, representing Christian education in the Philippines.

The Home Mission scene includes Mr. Pointord, Mrs. Roberts, Flora Wendal, and Ruth Yazel.

Those taking part in the city Americanization work at the immigrants' office are Clyde Smith, Gail Gorman, Mr. Jordan, Wilbur Long, and Elroy Reddick. Mrs. H. F. Powell is pianist for the pageant.

THREE LEAGUE CONTESTS THIS WEEK

GALION AND BUCYRUS MEET LEADERS; ALL QUINTETS WILL PLAY

Harding Plays at Ashland Friday Night; Standings May Change

BY EARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

MANY things can happen and only a few of them will when the six teams of the North Central Ohio basketball league get together Friday night. It will be the first time this season that all the conference aggregations have played against league opposition the same week.

The schedule follows:

Harding at Ashland.
Galion at Mansfield.
Bucyrus at Shelby.

Both Mansfield and Shelby, the undefeated leaders of the N. C. O. pack, will run up against stiff opposition that may clear up the congestion around the top berth. The odds favor the leaders for Bucyrus has not won a single league game to date while Galion holds second place after being downed by Shelby.

Galion showed considerable improvement in its game against Harding last week and will be out to knock the pins from under Mansfield's hopes. Dispatches from Mansfield indicate that Coach Murphy actually fears the Galion aggregation.

Bucyrus is still an unknown quantity in the N. C. O. reunion. Starting off the season like a flash the Crawford county quintet wilted against league opposition. After losing to Mansfield two weeks ago, Bucyrus has snapped out of it. The team looks more like the aggregation that started out the basketball year. Friday night will decide whether Bucyrus is to cause any damage to the leading teams.

Harding's game at Ashland is being played just because the schedule demands it. Both teams are out of the race. The Red and Black should win it in an easy fashion.

ILLINOIS ASKS IOWA TO RELAY CARNIVAL

Invitation to March Athletic Meeting Breaks Reinstatement Ice

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Feb. 4—The first formal recognition of Iowa's reinstatement in the Western conference was in the mails today in the form of an invitation which was sent by the University of Illinois asking the Hawkeyes to compete in its relay carnival here, March 15.

Illinois at first refused to compete with Iowa while the ban was still in effect and Iowa was not included on the original invitation list.

TRIES NOVEL TRAINING IDEAS

RAY D&TRICK
TIES HIS MEN TOGETHER DURING PRACTICE TO INSURE CLOSER GUARDING
HAS SPENT SEVERAL SUMMERS AS A GREAT LAKES DECK-HAND AND STOKER.
HE IS SUPERSTITIOUS ABOUT BASKETBALL
ARTHUR POINTER

DELAWARE, Feb. 4 — Novel ideas for the training of basketball teams are the specialty of Raymond O. Detrick, basketball coach at Ohio Wesleyan university.

Year after year he comes forth with new-fangled ideas that apparently work since now for the fourth consecutive season under his coaching, the Battling Bishops are outstanding contenders for the Buckeye conference championship. Never since Detrick became Ohio Wesleyan's basketball coach in 1926 have the Battling Bishops finished lower than second place in the conference standings.

This year he introduced the idea of tying his men together in practice to force a guard to keep close to the man he is covering. If the guard fails to keep on his toes, the three-foot string jerks both men around and demonstrates their playing. Consequently he has taught his defensive players to cover opponents closely.

"Practice when you feel like it," is a training rule in which Coach Detrick believes. "After a brief layoff a player will come back with renewed pep and without any danger of going stale."

Detrick is rather lenient about the eating habits of Ohio Wesleyan players but frowns on cakes and insists that the men must get plenty of sleep.

Colds are the thing which Detrick tries hardest to avoid for he believes that these ailments slow a player up greatly. For this reason he likes to have Bishop players wear galoshes, believing that doing so helps to prevent colds and tends to speed up the foot work of the team. The players' feet feel light when they don basketball shoes after having worn the heavier galoshes and as a result they are able to get about the floor in faster fashion.

Four Former Kenton Sandlot Stars To Be Honored at Elks' Banquet Tonight

KENTON, Feb. 4—Four big league ball players—all former Kenton sandlot stars—are to be honored with a banquet dinner to be held by the Elks' Dinner club in the Elks home tonight.

They are Ray "Brandy" Lingrel, Harve Ferner, of Kenton, Grover Hartley and William "Billy" Southworth of Columbus.

The dinner and meeting is being planned as a farewell for the league stars before they leave with their respective teams for spring training camps. Claude Osbun, deputy Hardin county clerk and president of the dinner club is in general charge of arrangements.

Southworth, a veteran in the big time, is to return as manager of the Rochester club of the International league, while Lingrel, former hurler with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Rochester club last season, is to join the Huston club of the Texas league, having received notice of his transfer the past winter.

Lingrel welcomes the transfer to the southland for he feels that the warmer climate will be a benefit to his arm which forced him from baseball two years ago. Houston is a Cardinal club.

Ferner, portsider and veteran in Eastern league play for several seasons, is again to return. Last year he played noteworthy ball with Wheeling in an Eastern league, his team winning the championship.

Hartley will return as catcher and trainer for the Cleveland Indians. A program of talks and other entertainment is being arranged for the farewell dinner.

FORMER MARION BOY COURT STAR

Paul Schweinfurth, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Schweinfurth, former residents of Marion, is one of the outstanding basketball forwards in Los Angeles high schools, according to press clippings received here. He plays with Jefferson high school and is noted for his trick shots.

He resided here five years ago and attended Harding high school one year. He will be graduated from the Los Angeles school this year.

Illinois Commission Will Begin Probe of Fight

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—The Illinois Athletic commission today will begin its investigation of the bout between Primo Carnera, giant Italian, and Elzear Rioux which ended with a 47-second knockout in Carnera's favor at the Chicago stadium Friday night.

Depositions of his manager, Leon See, will be introduced at today's meeting, as will the testimony of the judges, W. A. Battye and E. L. Cook, and the referee, Dave Barry.

Benny Bass Easy Winner Over Panama Lad in 3rd

Bass punished the Panama fighter for three rounds until Referee Harry Ertle of Jersey City stopped the bout and awarded Bass a technical knockout. Abad apparently was out on his feet.

During the three-round affray, Abad was floored six times. On the final knockdown, Abad lay prone for the count of nine.

GIANT FIGHTERS MAY MAKE NEW DIVISIONS

Boxing Commission Refuses To Sanction Uneven Heavyweight Bouts

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Those sad visaged young men alternately eating bananas and stretching that you passed on your way to work this morning were heavyweights making a frantic effort to be prepared for the creation of a super-heavyweight class.

Groundwork for this new division in boxing which would include only those mighty men whose abnormal weight and height read like a stock quotation before the crash was laid by the New York boxing commission when it refused to sanction a meeting between Johnny Risko and Vittorio Campolo. The august body refused to allow the match on the grounds that the difference in size of the men would reduce the bout to a slaughter.

List Is Short

If Risko, who came in for his fight with Griffiths something over 200 pounds, is too tiny for the South American giant who will fill the bill? Primo Carnera is one. George Godfrey or Knute Hansen, maybe. This about exhausts the list of men able to fill the commission's specifications.

Thus, officially, we have a super-heavyweight division of some three or four men. Undoubtedly the most exclusive group in boxing history. A division based not on skill, speed of foot or courage but a division founded on the principle that a man with a 22 neck can always slaughter the little fellow that measures but 20 around the tie rack.

If the commission's humanitarian idea is carried out Jack Sharkey, Max Schmeling, Phil Scott and the rest of the "little guys" will not be allowed to meet Carnera or Campolo. The dinosaurs of the ring lacking competition will be forced to keep felling one another or try the Chrysler building.

The commission evidently forgot all the ring history they knew before advancing this latest and most novel theory. On such a basis Jack Dempsey would never have annihilated huge Willard or lumbering Firpo; Sam Langford would spend his days searching for men his size to last a round or two and Stanley Ketchel and Jack Dillon would have had their penchant for knocking off the big boys stifled.

Charles F. Walsh Named St. Louis Grid Mentor

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 4—Charles F. Walsh of Hollywood, Cal., has been named head football coach at St. Louis university, it was announced here today.

Walsh formerly starred for Notre Dame on the gridiron and was named on the mythical all-western eleven in 1926.

MURPHY SCORES 28 POINTS AS BUCKEYES LOSE TO PURDUE 5

Boilermakers Strengthen Hold on First Place with 60-14 Victory

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Feb. 4— Purdue's grasp on first place in the Western conference basketball drive was strengthened today by the 60 to 14 victory the Boilermakers scored on Ohio State here last night.

Stretch Murphy's accurate eye for the basket netted 28 points for the conference leaders and incidentally broke his own and the conference individual score for one man.

Murphy's speed and the smoothness with which he worked with Glen Harmeson and Johnny Wooden swept the Buckeye defense off its feet from the start.

After the first five minutes the game was preponderantly Purdue's and Murphy's.

In the first half Murphy sank six field goals and one free throw. Johnny Wooden, Purdue guard, tied him in the same period with five field goals and three free throws, the man ended with Purdue leading 32 to 12.

YANKS STILL AFTER NEW MOUND ARTISTS

Shawkey Said To Be Dickering for Ed Morris of Boston Red Sox

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Not all the players who are listed as Yankees will answer the roll at St. Petersburg, it was said today, following a conference between Bob Shawkey, Yankee manager, and Bob Quinn, owner of the Boston Red Sox.

Shawkey is still willing to trade some pitchers and add other players for certain pitchers now in the majors, it was reported.

Shawkey admitted several propositions had been considered. He was said to have offered Quinn his choice of a number of players. The Yankee pilot refused to mention names.

The supposition is that he is angling for Ed Morris, a pitcher.

Sammy Mandell Marks Up Win Over Joey Goodman

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4—There was no doubt in the minds of several thousand Cleveland fight fans today that Sammy Mandell is truly a great and deserving champion of his class in the realm of fisticuffs.

The Rockford sheik took a well-earned decision here last night from Joey Goodman, ambitious and determined local youth, in the 12-rounder headlining brawl of the Cleveland Amateur basketball association's boxing card.

Goodman, the 20-year-old kid, was game—clear through—and he gave the champ more trouble than was expected, but throughout the fracas Mandell, cool and observant, worked that famous left with the precision and sting of a Lewis machine gun.

Writer Claims Babe, Yankees Will Get Together and Agree on Contract Before Three Weeks Pass

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—Babe Ruth, the big bat and ball man from the Bronx, can do himself at least $100,000 worth of good as exhibit A or the one-man ball game, it was freely conceded around baseball headquarters today as the National league went into executive session. I might add that it was very freely conceded. There is nothing so free as a baseball man when talking of other people's money and the peremptory threat of Ruth to go on exhibition, outside the pale of organized baseball, had all of them talking in their most garrulous vein, which automatically equals the A. A. U. record for the distance.

Anyhow, their idea of Ruth's value as a one-man exhibition run all the way up to $200,000, where of course it would stop and the rest of the money would be given away to the women and children. A minority opinion held that the boy friend could and would play a lone hand in the baseball racket with marked success but that the enterprise could be no more than a novelty and never a permanent institution. So much for surmise.

As for actuality, it was exclusively learned by the writer today that Ruth will give a series of exhibitions next season in a number of American cities, including New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Washington, Boston and St. Louis. They call this the American league. Arrangements for the tour, which will carry through 154 games, will be made not later than three weeks from today and, when the details are completed, Ruth will get some of the things he asks and the Yankees will get the greatest ball player of this age, at least. It is all a matter of mutual interest, although it would seem that Ruth's position is the stronger. The less seldom are in a position to argue with the pants they wear.

As for the National league meeting, it contemplated little and promised less. They still are trading Vance, Grimes, Luque and others without troubling to get anybody's consent. They still are settling the Brooklyn situation to the satisfaction of everybody, except maybe Robinson, McKeever, the Ebbets heirs and a few other unimportant people. They still are standing down there in the lobby, talking about nothing endlessly and in a very animated manner.

Incidentally, they still are holding the International league meeting, meaning that all concerned will be returned to the bosom of their families not later than the first of the week. As for the Eastern league, the last heard of this organization was that it had eight schedules under consideration. Yes, yes; the league has eight clubs. Just what the International league has under consideration, deponent knoweth not.

"We know nothing," they chorused at the close of yesterday and I had no quarrel with them. What annoyed me was that it took them all day to find it out.

Market Develops Irregular Tone After Active Stocks Climb

TRADING SLOWS UP AFTER NOON PERIOD

Early Advance in Rails Led by Atchison with 3-Point Jump

TICKER POWER OFF

Chrysler Gains Nearly Two Points To Feature Popular Motors

By W. S. COUSINS
Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—The stock market on an extremely irregular basis after a number of the more influential and active issues started to higher price levels in the principal manufacturing lines showed their advantage in earnings and a good proportion of the day centered on the professionals on the floor of the exchange. Trading was quiet shortly after the noon hour when market lagged with a distinctly swift pace.

The market started off with small scattered speculative favorites moving forward by fractional to two points. Interruption to the ticker service, which cut off quotations on important cities from the transactions during periods between 11 and 12 o'clock, made trading more difficult for customers and brokers. Installation of additional tickers is now being made.

Trading again was the feature of the motors, with a rise of 1½ points, the highest price since 1928, in Chrysler bank. Hudson sold up 1½ points, General Motors, Studebaker and Packard sold fractionally higher.

U. S. Bonds

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—The following prices were quoted for initial sales of Liberty bonds here today: First 4¼s, 101; fourth 4¼s, 101; treasury 4½s, 112.

CLEARINGS $131,695

Bank clearings yesterday reached $131,695, the highest in several days, according to reports from the Marion clearings bank, clearing house. A week ago the clearings amounted to $120,000.27.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 4—A four-cent crash in wheat prices yesterday to new low level for the season sounded the knell of the grain trade's confidence in Farm Board activities as a supporting factor in the futures market. Displaying a tendency similar to recent cotton trading, the decline of values below the government agency's loaning level without increasing support caused a growth in bearish sentiment.

At the close, wheat prices were only a small fraction above the lows made a few minutes before and registered net losses for the day of 1¾@1¾c. Corn was 1¼@1c lower; oats ¾@1c down; and rye, 3½@4½c lower. Winnipeg wheat futures closed 3¾@4¼c off, and Liverpool was 2½@2¾d lower.

General liquidation and lack of buying support in wheat expressed disappointment of holders and traders over the failure of the world market to continue its rally with which the previous week closed, and disappointment over the outcome of the meeting of farm leaders in Washington.

The publicized result of the latter was appointment of a wheat advisory committee, which was construed as the first step toward creating a stabilization corporation to operate under the broad powers given it by the Agricultural Marketing Act. With the trade prone to compare such action with Brazil's experience with coffee, India with hemp, England with rubber and Canada's present wheat predicament, the furtherance of the plan was looked upon as bearish.

Meanwhile the world market and export demand, which to the trade appears the only incentive for higher prices, were most discouraging. Liverpool's sharp reaction was laid to continued quiet demand and pressing offers from France and Russia. The latter country sold 185,000 bu. to the United Kingdom and was offering more.

With such a situation it was not surprising domestic demand was flat over the week-end and seaboard advices showed no increase in demand with dropping values. Winnipeg futures ruled very weak with the reaction at Liverpool the leading influence.

Co-operatives continued to buy wheat from the country at the established level of prices which ranged as much as 2½c above cash market levels. The Rural Grain Company, farm board representatives in the local market, purchased the grain to be brought here on that basis.

They bought one car of No. 1 hard at the 1.20 price and one of No. 2 hard at $1.18. Cash trade was generally quiet, and the not unexpected increase in marketings occurred with primary receipts of 1,116,000 bu. compared with 748,000 bu. a week ago.

Corn trade continued of small proportions with most of the speculative interest displayed by locals who were bearish because of the wheat situation. Outside interest was limited. The situation was without material change from the previous week, with weather favorable and country offerings light.

Cars of grain received and inspected: Wheat, 33; corn, 230; oats, 40; rye, none; and barley, 39.

MARION YOUTH DOING FINE CABINET WORK

Paul Clevenger Turning Out Products in Spare Time at Academy

There is no waste time in the schedule of Paul Clevenger, Marion boy attending Western Reserve Academy at Hudson, O., according to a news report received from the school today.

In addition to his regular course of study, Clevenger spends his spare time in the Academy workship turning out work that provides evidence of exceptional ability as a craftsman.

The Marion boy has just completed an inlaid checker table and his next project is the construction of a case for a clock. After that he expects to reproduce some of the fine old furniture left to the school by the late James W. Ellsworth from his notable collection of antiques.

In the checker table just completed the dark squares of the board are made of black walnut and the lighter ones of maple. In the legs Clevenger has carried out the same idea, making the dark stripes of walnut in maple ground. The table top is hinged so that the checkers may be kept inside.

Besides his interest in cabinet work, Clevenger is a member of the school astronomy club, natural history society, and is secretary of the freshman class.

He is the son of Mrs. Glenna Clevenger, 248 South Vine st.

Lorain Mayor Would Paint City Cars Red, White and Blue

LORAIN, Feb. 4—"Will we have to salute?"

This is the question puzzling Lorainites today following Mayor Paul J. Goldthorpe's instructions to city employes to paint all municipal cars in the patriotic combination of red, white, and blue.

Goldthorpe, in ordering the color scheme for municipal automobiles declared he hopes to prevent "borrowing" of the cars by city employes for their personal use. Only police and fire department machines are exempt from the order.

TAFT IN CAPITAL; IS VERY SICK MAN

Former Chief Justice in No Immediate Danger Though, Doctor Says

carried down the steps. It was a painful process. Half-way down the few steps; his helpers came to a rest, more for his sake than for theirs. Taft thrust out a pale hand and grasped the rail. When they continued the downward move it was necessary to release his grip from the railing.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Taft, Dr. Hagner and W. W. Michelet, the sick man's secretary, stood on the platform and watched anxiously. It was most evident they were worried.

When at last Taft was lowered to the platform he was placed in a wheel chair.

"It's a fight for" said Dr. Hagner, with a smile, and a flicker passed over the face of the man who has been known as the most genial personage in public life.

He was wheeled to the exit where his car was waiting. There the photographers were stationed, flash guns were affixed to their cameras because of the half light of the dawn. Even the booms of the flashes, finally in his face, failed to startle Taft, or arouse his interest.

The task of getting America's great statesman and jurist into his automobile was another nerve-wracking affair. He had to be lifted from the wheel chair and gently pushed and pulled into the rear seat.

Mrs. Taft, Dr. Hagner and Miss Manifold, the nurse, got in with him and the limousine pulled away for the Wyoming av. home.

Dr. Hagner reported his patient spent a fairly comfortable night but admitted he was required to go to Taft's sleeping quarters several times to attend to him.

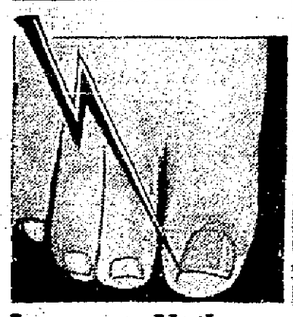
The physician was checking up on Taft's condition today and that when he arrived at Asheville 11 days ago. There he was able to walk from the train unaided. This morning he was virtually carried bodily to his limousine.

No crowds of the curious had gathered in front of the Taft mansion up until 10 a. m. Some reporters were there awaiting for any possible change in the condition of the noted statesman whose name is known to all.

Abrams Is Threatened for Farmer Prosecution

DAYTON, Feb. 4—"The Sword of Damocles" today hangs over the head of Assistant District Attorney Harry Abrams of Cincinnati, who was threatened with death.

Abrams, who received the death threat letter, refused to divulge the full contents. He, however, remarked that bodily harm was promised him if he did not stop prosecution against six Middletown and Hamilton farmers. The farmers are now on trial in federal court here on charges of forcibly resisting government agents, who were testing cattle for tuberculosis.



Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward also, it over night. —Adv.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

PAIR OF DELAWARE OFFICERS LOSE JOBS

One Discharged, Other Resigns After Autoists File Charges

Delaware police force today had been reduced to three members following the resignation of Joseph Davis, motorcycle officer, and the discharge of Vic Ward, patrolman, on charges of "conduct unbecoming to an officer."

Davis resigned and Ward was dismissed as the result of charges brought against them by E. L. and John McCarthy, of Wichita Falls, Tex., former Delaware residents. They charged the officers used abusive language and threatened to handcuff them after stopping them on the Columbus-Delaware rd. on charges of speeding.

Ward's resignation, had previously been refused by Safety Director Fred Huntsberger. His dismissal came after a delegation of Delaware businessmen had protested his retention.

According to the affidavit filed by the McCarthys, Davis represented that he was a deputy of Sheriff Main, and that Ward was a state officer when they halted the car. The charge further declares that after the two had stopped the car and had threatened to handcuff the occupants, that the motorcycle in which the men were riding left the road. Ward was picked up by the McCarty car, and enroute to Delaware, he said that both he and Davis were Delaware policemen, and that they had been to Columbus on a party and had had too much to drink. He asked them to forget all about it.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every simple sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and dizzing of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

Congress Outruns Hoover in Naming Commissions

President Has Set Up Nine Fact Finding Bodies While Congress Has Created More Than 20 Such Groups

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—Congress has been somewhat [illegible] President Hoover for a [illegible] to name commissions to [illegible] has been even more [illegible] creating these bodies, a [illegible] legislation introduced and [illegible] last March revealed today.

[illegible] inauguration March 4 [illegible] over has set up nine [illegible]. A scanning of legislative records [illegible] congress [illegible] and or created more than [illegible] in the same period.

[illegible] all of the commissions [illegible] or created by congress, [illegible] of administrative support [illegible] been of a fact finding [illegible] ter, have been the [illegible] ential commissions, with the outstanding exception of the federal farm board, created on recommendation of President Hoover as the operating machinery of the farm relief bill.

Local in Character

The commissions named by congress have, generally, been of little interest nationally, but applied chiefly to local or sectional purposes. Their appointment was of a routine nature.

Of the Hoover commissions, the farm board and the commission on law observance and enforcement have excited wide national comment, and drawn attention to what a number of Democrats referred to in debate as the "commission form of government" under Mr. Hoover.

In addition to these two commissions, the following have been set up by or at the instance of the president:

The National Memorial commission; San Francisco Bridge commission; Yellowstone National Park and Boundary commission; child health and protection commission; advisory committee on illiteracy; commission on conservation and administration of the public domain; and the research committee on social trends.

Congress has supported the president in authorization for appropriations for all of these commissions, although some of the Democrats objected to the appointment of "more commissions in an already complicated government."

Legislation for Commission

Commission to investigate the burdens and benefits of war; world highway commission; motor ways commission; Indian-Lincoln memorial commission; commission for the Washington-Lincoln memorial boulevard; commission to study unskilled agricultural labor; industrial relations commission; commission on centralization; communications commission; commission on American women in war; commission on a national museum of engineering and industry; seven regional commissions in the interstate commerce commission; Muscle Shoals commission; Lincoln highway commission; elections commission; District of Columbia real estate commission; industrial art commission; educational peace commission; commission for the cooperation of national governments.

No trace of the bodies has yet been found although gloves and miscellaneous equipment were dug out of the snow in the vicinity of the wreck.

I'LL PAY Anyone $1000.00 to NAME THIS— IN CASH

Here Is An Easy Way to Make $1000.00

If you were putting a new soap on the market what would you call it? You would give it some name—either simple or fancy—what would that name be? I know you have a name in mind now, or you can suggest one after a few moments' thought. The very name you select may win the $1000.00 I am offering. It makes no difference whether you live in the country or city, if you are educated or not, if you are rich or poor, I want you to help me by suggesting a name for my new soap. We have paid thousands of dollars to prize winners and in almost every instance the person who least expected to win received a prize. You, too, may win by sending a suggestion. It costs you nothing to try. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, for any name may win. This soap is fragrant, lathers freely, promotes a smooth soft skin, is excellent for the bath, washing the hair, etc. A coined word such as Clean-Easy, Clean-All, or the name of flowers, trees, etc., or any other name you think of may be submitted.

YOU CAN'T LOSE

Because other contestants submit the winning name first, as we will pay duplicate prizes to all who send the winning name. Never before three great grain foods in one

Quaker Oats Company scientists discover new "blended" cereal. Create unique ready-to-eat breakfast food with richer nourishment . . . greater crispness . . . new rare flavor

Here's luscious new flavor. Here's unheard of crispness. Here's a wealth of nutrition never before offered in one cereal. Because this new cereal is a blend of the best in the three great American grain foods.

It took over 17 years of research to bring this really new ready-to-eat cereal to you. It cost close to $1,000,000. But you'll say it's worth it when you taste Quaker "CRACKELS," the amazing new breakfast food creation.

We took the best there is in oats, wheat and corn. Blended them by a new patented process. Toasted them into golden brown crunchy little pillows as crisp as fresh nut meats.

So Quaker Crackels contains the splendid energy of wheat. The proteins and carbohydrates of oatmeal. The rich nourishment of corn . . . plus zestful new "blended" flavor you never tasted before—flavor unlike any other cereal.

Oven Blending Process Makes Crackels Freshly Crisp

More than all, Quaker Crackels has a zestful, fresh-from-the-oven crispness. It tumbles out of the box into your cereal dish, fairly crackling with crunchiness. With milk and cream, it stays crisp to the last spoonful. That's because wheat, corn and oats have been blended in just the right proportion to secure this unusual crispness.

Delight your family tomorrow with the taste of this newest cereal. All grocers have it.

On the Streets of Marion

WITH STAR STAFF

Paths to Success

IN last night's published account of election of officers held by the Marion Buick Co. appeared a brief account of the history of the local Buick agency. It told of the company's organization back in 1918 with William Moyer as manager. The most interesting part of the story starts farther back than that and leads up to Moyer's present position as head of a large automobile distributing company in Columbus.

Moyer's rise in the automotive business provides material for one of the most unusual records to be found in local annals of the last two decades. Like many other accounts of achievement in this modern motor phenomenon of commercial and industrial development, it has a coloring of the Horatio Alger tinge.

When the automobile industry was just getting something like a firm footing, "Bill" Moyer was one of Marion's popular young men about town and was employed as a clerk in a local clothing store.

Young men of Moyer's type are not content to remain stationary. He saw big things ahead in the new industry and although equipped with only meager capital he decided to "get in on the ground floor."

Moyer and another local man formed a partnership and took over the Buick agency. Their headquarters were established in one of the courts extending off East Center st. Later the partner dropped out but Moyer held on.

With the advantage of a pleasing personality and natural ability as a salesman, he sold cars where others failed and was successful virtually from the beginning.

Then came organization of the Marion Buick Co. with Moyer as executive head. The city's largest garage and agency headquarters were established in a new building on East Center st. and there the business rapidly grew to one of the largest of its kind in this section of Ohio.

About 10 years ago Moyer sold out his interests and although definite figures were never made public it is generally known that his share of the sale price was sufficient to give him a high financial rating.

This record of "Bill" Moyer's, made in approximately 15 years, seems to indicate that America is still the land of opportunity and that the path to success can be found just as easily in the old home town as in the seething marts of trade in the big cities.

A Man's Castle

MARION real estate dealers are forecasting 1930 as a "good real estate year." As explained by one of them they mean that it is likely to be a year of home buying, not one of real estate speculation.

The argument in favor of home owning holds firm now the same as it has in the past, possibly more so. Experience in this era of somewhat lax and miss living, frequently with the miss prevailing, has proven the value and merit of a family having an abode of its own. This is regarded by real estate dealers and other business men as a sound basis for the prediction that there is pretty sure to be a pronounced trend toward home buying this year.

"The claim that 'it is cheaper to rent than to own a home' is still heard but it is getting weaker as time goes on," one Marion realtor said a few days ago. "While there may be a few instances where a temporary financial advantage is gained through living in rented house, the home owner is ahead in the long run. He has an investment, the soundest to be found anywhere, and in addition the satisfaction of knowing that he and his family are sure of a place to stay should adversity appear.

"A man's home is his castle when he has a deed for it—otherwise, it may be only an air castle." Is one of the expressions of the homeowning advocates.

Less Than $5,000

AT a recent meeting of the National Association of Merchant Tailors the assembled sartorial experts decided after presumably profound deliberation that a man should be able to dress well at an expenditure of from $5,000 to $10,000 a year.

This enlightening disclosure was made through press dispatches, bringing thousands of citizens to the realization that they are wizards of efficiency, at least in the matter of dress.

Suspecting that there are some Marion men whose clothing bills fall somewhat below even the minimum of $5,000 yearly, The Perspiring Reporter decided to get some first-hand information.

Results of the inquiry seem to show that it is possible to get along at considerably less than the figures set by the National association.

Take, for example, August Achandle, who lives at 8225 East Center st. When interviewed, August was not a bit hesitent in saying that since his marriage six years ago he has managed to put up a presentable appearance with only four new suits for the entire period.

In that time, August has not set the boulevards aflame with the brilliancy of his attire but after all August has no ambition to rate as a fashion-plate.

Of course, he had his wedding suit to start with and it was a good one. Then he bought another at the close of his first matrimonial year and a few days after the twins were born he felt so chesty that he went out and blew himself to another outfit of the latest design.

Later he found that while two might live as cheaply as one, four tend to boost the household expenses bill, even if half the family consume nothing but certified milk and use their lungs only for keeping the rest of the family awake at nights.

Now suits come less frequently and at the time he was interviewed August was sporting a costume that glistened with the sheen of several seasons' friction.

Nevertheless, August is happy and says that while his wardrobe is somewhat limited he feels just as important as though he was in the $5,000 to $10,000 class. For now he has a family of five.

Further evidence tending to controvert the figures set by the national clothing authorities came from Bolivar Horseradish, owner of a gents' fashion shop at 11505 Windsor st. He caters especially to Marion's younger and more particular dressers.

"These estimates are much too high," he asserted. "I have many of the city's real stylists on my books and at spend considerably less than these amounts. In fact some of them spend nothing at all. I haven't been able to get a knickel out of them for almost a year."

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are pleased to announce that after a few years of comparative inaction we are opening an office and will again engage in a general Real Estate business. We plan to make all kinds of realty investments, buying and selling city and country property, and mercantile stocks, as well. We will maintain an exchange business, which will be especially stressed at this time, as many owners of property, homes, farms, and mercantile stocks, etc., who do not find ready sale, will be glad to exchange their present holdings for some other property that will better serve their purpose.

LOCATION

We have accepted quarters at 139 East Center Street, over the Smart & Waddell shoe store, sharing offices with Attorney Geran, and the Kette Insurance Agency.

THE OUTLOOK

All business travels in cycles. In fact all human experience follows this basic principle. If any business is quiet today, that fact is the best proof that it is due for an improvement. We call it vibration in mechanics and know it is reaction in business. The three basic fundamentals in realty, the homes, farms, and the store, for which there must ever remain an increasing demand, are certainly due to a favorable reaction. The billions of dollars so cruelly baffeted in the recent speculation, will and is now turning to safe and saner objects of investment, and the home, and farm, the very foundation of our American system, must and will come in for their share of improvement. Man must have shelter and food.

LIST PROPERTY WITH US

You are invited to call in and see us at once, and present your listings. Phones, office 5171, home 3421. Office hours, from nine till five, with evenings by special appointment. It will be to your advantage to report soon, as we are going to get busy at once. We expect to do business.

APPRECIATION

I shall venture to express an appreciation for and to the host of former clients whose business connections were very agreeable, and whose patronage we respectfully solicit.

ALL SET FOR BUSINESS

In turn we will soon offer a list of the very best buys in both homes and farms, as also some stocks of merchandise. Likely these will include many entirely new offerings.

SEE US OVER SMART & WADDELL STORE, EAST CENTER STREET.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN H. BAIN

IN NEW SEMESTER

Schools of City Start on Second Period of Year

The second semester of school opened here yesterday with an unusually quiet first day. There was a general bustle in arranging schedules for students in the high school, and several pupils were taking special examinations.

Failures this year for the first semester's work were not in excess of last year's numbers, and the atmosphere of the schools seemed to be one of regularity and smoothness.

The smallpox epidemic has almost entirely died out, and an unofficial report for the last weeks of January was that the attendance for this year was above the average of last year.

"KONJOLA BEST INVESTMENT I HAVE EVER MADE"

Cleveland Lady Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks—Was Completely Run Down

MRS. WILLIAM ARNDT

"Konjola turned out to be the best investment I have ever made," said Mrs. William Arndt, 5032 West 234th St., Cleveland. "I had spent, or rather wasted, many a dollar trying to find relief from indigestion and its pains, but nothing helped me. I was so sick and miserable all over that I did not care much whether I lived or not. My system was completely run-down, and I was weak and tired out all the time.

"Fortunately the many indorsements that I read of Konjola led me to try this medicine. To my astonishment I began to feel better within a week. In two weeks I gained ten pounds. My digestion improved rapidly, and I was stimulated and invigorated generally. After a six week's treatment, I am feeling better than for many years. All this splendid health I owe to Konjola, and I endorse it with all my heart."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Versatile Manager

"The club was organized one winter evening with Cicero Ideleman as treasurer and manager, and who was also supposed to be equal to every emergency and take any part on a minute's notice. The future attorney general of Oregon, in addition to his official position, was really an understudy for the entire company, and a very capable one he quickly proved.

"B. G. Young, the present judge of the court of common pleas, essayed heavy parts and was always an interesting villian. W. E. Scofield took the juvenile parts. Cass Wilson was a very acceptable comedian. Joseph Copeland was a clever character artist, while Jacob Jones and William Clark were at their very best in romantic parts."

Other members of the cast mentioned were Mrs. Dickson, of Scranton, Pa., Miss Helen Williams, Mrs. Ida Pierson, the late Mrs. Moody, Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, and Mrs. Frank Barnes, of Columbus.

Caterer Reaped Profits

Continuing, the article was as follows:

"The company continued its efforts through two winters and never failed to draw packed houses, the proceeds of which ordinarily went to enrich Corey Pettit, who was the leading caterer of the city and who conducted an elegant establishment on North Main st.

"The plays produced were 'The Last Loaf,' 'The Door of New York,' 'The Golden Fernier, and the pantomimes, 'Willikens and His Jonah,' and 'The Mistletoe Bow,' were usually thrown in for good measure.

"The last appearance of most of the members in a home theatrical event was in the production of Muscroft's 'Drummer Boy of Shiloh,' at the old Wigwam. In this play the late Dr. T. B. Fisher, Harry Young, George James, Fred H. Tristram, a Mr. Nail and assistant, both of Mansfield, and others took part.

"Contemporaneous with the above mentioned company, what is remembered as the Irish Dramatic club was producing 'Ireland As It Was' and reaping well deserved laurels in the thespian world.

"It is also worth remembering that the same fraternal spirit which binds the members of companies on the road was in evidence among those identified with the two clubs, and all belonging to one organization always received complimentaries when the other club was occupying the boards.

Newspaper Men Active

"The latter company included in its membership Thomas Proctor, an actor and manager of more than ordinary ability, who at the time was occupying an editorial chair in a local newspaper office. His leading support was John McAndrew, a newspaper reporter, who was a favorite in French character parts.

"Both companies have long since passed out of existence, but they have left a pleasant spot in the memory of those who were forenuate enough to be numbered among their patrons.

"Recorder A. W. Bryant at one time headed a local company, and later Samuel Smith and a company produced a play written by Mr Smith.

"Only a year or so since, the Mask and Wig club essayed several parlor productions, but none of these attracted the great interest of the plays put on by the local players of a quarter of a century ago."

From this newspaper story, it is evident that these local companies were great favorites in the community.

Personal Work Urged as Church Essential

"Personal Work" was the subject of the sermon preached at Calvary Evangelical church last night by the Rev. W. C. Graves, Los Angeles evangelist. In his talk he said:

"Personal work is necessary for the salvation of the lost, and it has many advantages. Any one can do personal work, even invalids and shut ins have been known to do marvelous personal work; it can be done any place, in the home, at work, or at school, as well as in the church. In these days of indifference, it is going to become necessary for Christians to go out to do personal work."

Special musical numbers will be given each night. Early prayer service will be held at 7 o'clock.

Millions More stop "dosing" COLDS

EVERY year since the introduction of Vicks VapoRub, more and more people have given up the old-fashioned way of "dosing" colds and turned to this modern external method. Today the whole trend of medical practice is away from "needless "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because it cannot upset delicate stomachs as "dosing" is so apt to do. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

To keep pace with the ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds, the famous Vick slogan has again been changed, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

*Be Moderate!...Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Centralization Leads to Bureaucracy.

There was a lot of truth as well as good, sound sense in what Attorney General Gilbert Bettman told the convention of Ohio township trustees in Columbus, a few days ago, in warning them against the growing tendency in government toward centralization under the guise of working for the attainment of efficiency.

The attorney general, an able man of keen judgment, realizes that the "efficiency" business in government has been greatly overdone, and it was his purpose in addressing the trustees to bring this realization on his part home to them.

Voicing his opposition to the movement to abolish the office of trustee, he warned that the quest for the so-called efficiency in government needs careful watching, and he termed the cry of efficiency "the hand-maiden to governmental centralization."

The attorney general decried the persistent campaign under the cry of "efficiency" to take away from the people the right to govern themselves. To guard against centralized bureaucracy, he continued, the revolutionary fathers chose, as a form of government, a republic based upon the popular will, and he urged that the wise plan of the founding fathers could be best guarded and bureaucracy avoided by the avoidance of centralization.

"Hence let us not sacrifice the township trustee, who knows and understands the local needs, who is responsible to and represents the will of the people at home, upon the altar of this alleged efficiency," the attorney general said in summing up and offering a remedy for any possible abuses of trusteeships. "I am for efficiency. But the efficiency we desire in government is that which is consistent with democracy.

"If township trustees be not efficient, the cure is not their abolition, but in securing as township trustees the men of the community who represent achieved success in the neighborhood—whose probity is beyond question and whose patriotic purpose to serve in government moves them to stand for township office."

It's a pleasure to comment a public official who has a mind which is unfettered, who has an opinion of his own and is not afraid to express it when he believes that there is need of such expression for the common good, and our admiration for such an official is the higher when he speaks out in the face of the fact that there is an organized movement behind the plan against which he warns.

Retirement of Chief Justice Taft.

The voluntary retirement of Chief Justice William Howard Taft from the United States supreme bench takes from official life one who has been honored by selection to more offices of high rank than any other American and the only man in American history to fill the highest position in two branches of the government.

The story of Chief Justice Taft's life is a long-drawn-out story of faithful performance of public trusts. Assistant prosecutor of Hamilton county, United States collector of internal revenue, judge of the superior court in Cincinnati, solicitor general of the United States by appointment of President Harrison, judge of the United States circuit court for the Sixth district and professor of law in Cincinnati university—all these are positions such as have been filled by many men. But beginning with his appointment by President McKinley as president of the Philippine commission, he has held an exalted place in the public eye. His handling of the delicate matter of the confiscation of church land in a personal interview with Pope Leo XIII, his success as governor of the Philippines, his service as secretary of war, his temporary charge of affairs in Cuba, his opening of the first legislative assembly in the Philippines, the successful manner in which he quieted Nipponese apprehensions during his visit to Japan; his reorganization of the work of carrying on the construction of the Panama canal and his selection of Colonel George W. Goethals, named by President Roosevelt, as a result of which the great project was given new vigor—all these mark him as a man of ability beyond the ordinary.

Mr. Taft's record as president and the accomplishments of his administration, as well as his service as the presiding justice of the federal supreme bench, to which position he was named by President Harding, are of sufficiently recent date to be green in public memory.

It is very possible that we have had abler secretaries of war; undoubtedly we have had presidents who loomed larger in the popular estimate, unquestionably there have been chief justices who have made a stronger impression in the judicial branch of the government, but it is to be questioned if any have held the public confidence to a greater extent than has Mr. Taft in all the places of high rank he has filled.

It may be said for Chief Justice Taft that he has ably filled all the positions of trust committed to him, either by appointment or election, faithfully and well. Were all other evidence of this lacking, it would be proved by the fact that he was the selection of four presidents to places of great trust. And the greatest loss the supreme bench might have sustained as the result of his resignation would not have been so much that of a distinguished jurist as the loss of one in whom there is general public confidence.

Happily, the selection by President Hoover of Charles E. Hughes to fill the vacancy caused by the Taft resignation precludes the possibility of loss in any regard to the court, for Mr. Hughes holds the public esteem and confidence to a degree unsurpassed by any notable figure of the land and his former tenure of the high place to which he has just been reappointed brought to him recognition as one of the great, outstanding figures among the eminent jurists who have made up our highest judicial tribunal.

Detroit's police commissioner has announced that the charge, that the recent attempt to murder a police inspector up there was inspired by another inspector, will be publicly aired. It should be. Even an unsupported charge to that effect makes the police situation in that city smell to the high heavens.

Washington's far-famed panther not having been reported seen for the past three days, it is assumed that it has taken itself off to some community less aroused to its menace, and conditions in the national capital are once again becoming normal.

It is good to read that Raymond Poincaré is entirely recovered from the two serious operations he underwent and has returned to Paris from the Riviera. The people of France can not afford to lose the services of the man who has so often saved their land from governmental chaos.

It was the proud boast of a man who died up in St. Paul, Sunday, that in the last fifteen years he had played 65,000 games of solitaire. Yet it is possible that even a man who had achieved thus greatly suffered regret that he couldn't live on to score further triumphs.

Forty patrons and the proprietor of an Akron pool-room were held up and robbed of $1,000 by two masked bandits, shortly before dawn Sunday morning. Recognizing the high worth of the Akron police department, one is just forced to assume that operating a pool-room on Sunday is within the law in that city.

A safe in the office of the Toledo Blade was blown, early Sunday morning, and robbed of $1,000. When cracksmen are reduced to the robbing of safes in newspaper offices it demonstrates beyond all question of doubt that the crime business is being overdone.

The Berlin police are reputed to have averted a red revolt plot set for Saturday by raiding a secret meeting of communists and seizing seventy-six reds, several members of the reichstag among them. A little activity along that line over here in the United States would hardly be ground for a charge of mistaken zeal.

It develops that Senator Brookhart's charge of gin-drinking in the Century club, of New York, was based on an anonymous letter received by him. It must appeal to the general public that the limit has been closely approached in the senate when members assail the reputation of a prominent club on the authority of one who, by writing an anonymous letter, makes manifest that he not only is beyond the pale of decency, but is also a coward.

Clean Hands Safeguard Health.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

For a long time influenza has been thought to be caused by an infectious agent or germ. The news is now brought to us from the University of Chicago that Dr. Falk, of that institution, after years of research in this subject, has at last found the influenza germ. I hope this is true; if so, a great discovery has indeed been made.

Science has given to us many wonderful discoveries which have made for good health. Influenza has taken a large toll of human lives in various terrible epidemics, and every year many cases in every country of the world attest to its devastating power.

In good health, our bodies have resistance to the germs of disease as they come singly. But when they attack us in great mass, the body is powerless to withstand their assault. It is when we are fatigued by overwork, or loss of sleep, when our physical vitality is low from poor or inadequate food, that the germs get their deadly hold upon us.

Cleanliness of every bodily surface prevents the entry of these germs. To be surgically clean all the time is out of the question, but when you are as near to it as possible then you are the safer.

The germ of influenza is conveyed by the hand easily. It is commonly carried from hand to hand, from a doorknob or a hundred other places. The moisture from a cough or sneeze from another carries this germ, and so infection comes from one near you.

There are certain rules of cleanliness every one should make use of, always, every day. Washing the hands frequently, and always before eating, is essential. Wash the face with soap and plenty of water every day, not neglecting to wash out the nostrils. This is a place where germs are likely to lodge.

The teeth should be cleaned thoroughly two or three times a day. In sneezing and coughing, cover the face with a handkerchief and beware of the person who does not do this. Eat only in places which are immaculately clean. Always sleep in well-ventilated rooms.

If you find yourself sneezing, with a feeling of feverishness and eyes running, take a hot bath and go to bed. If not better the next morning call your doctor.

You protect yourself in going to bed, and you protect society. If you have influenza, the germs are dangerous to the next person you meet.—Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper, questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Editorial Opinion.

VAUDEVILLE IN THE SENATE.

The description of Senator Brookhart's latest prohibition outburst as "a bedtime story" was unhappy. A bedtime story carries a suggestion of finality. The promise in Senator Brookhart's "revelations" is that of continuity, which one associates rather with vaudeville entertainments; and the tone of his most recent "act" was about what one would look for on the small-time circuit.

The junior senator from Wisconsin was more fortunate in his point of attack, when he charged the senior senator from Iowa with violating the law by advertising "where good liquor could be procured." Senator Brookhart promptly wrapped himself in his constitutional immunity. While he may not be questioned in any other place for what he says on the floor of the senate, a senator may be reprimanded and punished by his own colleagues. The complacency with which their tolerance wild and irresponsible statements in their midst and the childish refuge certain senators take behind the skirts of the constitution make them parties to this abuse of privilege.

Well meaning as they may be, Senator Brookhart and a handful of his equally-windy colleagues are doing more than the senate a disservice. All their buffoonery reflects directly on prohibition and makes the enforcement of it more difficult. Whatever one may think of the merits of prohibition, a public question has been raised by it that interests more people in this country today than any other question; and for that reason it should be approached with dignity and obvious sincerity. The levity which has come to mark the discussion of it in both houses of congress can not fail to have serious repercussions among the people at large. The spectacle of senators and representatives making a joke of a subject upon which they are laying down the law for others to obey is not likely to increase the respect of the citizenry for the laws they enact.—Detroit Free Press.

OUR BEST TO LATIN AMERICA.

It is a far cry from the "deserving Democrats" which a former secretary of state insisted on inflicting upon Latin America to the fine type of representatives, most of them career men, President Hoover has assigned as ministers to the Latin countries on this continent. How much Latin-American antagonism to the United States has been fostered by the lack of diplomatic talent and ignorance of language and customs among American ambassadors and ministers perhaps will never be known, but that inappropriate selections have had much to do with the suspicions against us on the part of our southern neighbors, may be set down as the truth. President Coolidge recognized the desirability of sending capable men to the Latin-American posts, and President Hoover made a personal visit to some of the most important countries in South America for the deliberate purpose of seeking causes of friction or complaint, if any; and one of the results is the announcement from Washington that the new president has practically completed his round of changes in the diplomatic service in Latin America and has equipped every post with a man in whom the people whose guest he will be may trust as a friend as implicitly as the government which sends him confides in him as an adviser.

It is something of a novelty for the people of the Spanish-speaking countries of this hemisphere to memorialize the departure of an American minister with elaborate ceremonies of regret, as with Roy T. Davis, whom the Costa Ricans have learned to love, but these affairs promise to become more common. Mexico almost idolizes Dwight W. Morrow, and when Major General Enoch H. Crowder returned from Havana, Cuba felt she had lost a friend, but she will gain another in Harry F. Guggenheim, one of the few American diplomats taken directly from private life. But he, like all the other appointees of President Hoover to Latin-American posts, is typical of selections drawn from business life or American embassies and legations upon whose experience and judgment the sending and the guest country can equally rely.—Boston Transcript.

The Appeal of Cuba.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

This is the time of year when many of your neighbors—if not neighbors, at least fellow-countrymen—are enjoying the warm sunshine of Cuba. As a winter resort, this island republic, which is so accessible to our east-coast ports, is running a close race with far-famed Florida and sunny California.

Havana is the main landing place for visitors to Cuba and it is certainly a pleasing introduction to the island. The entrance to Havana's marvelous harbor is narrow—scarcely more than a thousand feet across, past the grim Morro castle. Once through this bottle-neck, however, the harbor opens out into a body of water some three miles long and upwards of a mile and a half wide. Along the shore are boulevards and promenades with here and there a park. Public buildings, some old and some new, and beautiful private residences dot this part of the city.

Skyscrapers? Well, Havana has a few, but she won't have any more. With the true temperament of the Latin, the city fathers have decided that beauty is more valuable than thousands of square feet of floor space on an acre of ground. Ordinances limiting the building activities of "big business have been passed. The newer buildings are being constructed along typically Cuban lines and an attempt is being made to maintain an atmosphere of the old city.

One of the finest of the more modern buildings is the new presidential palace. This huge ornate building, facing on the famous Plaza de Armas, was completed in 1920. Its lines are classic, from the impressive colonnade at the street level, up to the nicely-formed dome.

In the older sections of the city will be found shops and residences built in the early colonial style. Some of these old shopping centers with their arcades and awnings and windows filled with the bright miscellany of the island, remind one of Oriental bazaars. The houses are massive and square, built around the ever-present patio to which the family repairs during the heat of the day.

One runs across all sorts of interesting sights on the streets of Cuba's capital. The natives from the rural districts, the negroes and negresses, the itinerant merchants. . . . It is surprising what a variety of things are sold by these street merchants. First you will see a strong countryman with a huge basket of bananas, then a young colored boy carrying a few caged songbirds. Songbirds, incidentally, are popular and there are few shops or houses which do not have one. Laces and linens, hats, everything is to be had from these street merchants.

Havana's appeal as a winter playground is growing year by year. It is a fascinating spot—one which is seldom left with other than a feeling of satisfaction. Go there when you can. It isn't far, but it is another country, and a charming one.

NEW STAMP ISSUE

Air Mail Supply Expected Here Late This Month

Local postoffice officials have been notified that a new five-cent air mail stamp has been issued to replace the current bi-colored stamp issued in 1928. The stamp will go on sale at Washington, Feb. 10.

The new stamp is the same size and is printed in purple. The central design is a reproduction of the insignia of an air mail pilot, a globe with extended wings on either side and a background of rays of lights. Upon the globe are the words "U. S. Air Mail." In a horizontal panel across the top of the stamp are the words, "United States Postage" in white Roman letters and at the bottom is an ornate panel of the same design.

Although an order for these new stamps has not been made by local officials, it is probable that a shipment will reach here the middle or end of the month.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use Lux Toilet Soap

It has swept across the world from Hollywood to Europe

"NO beauty is more important to a girl than alluring smooth skin." So says William A. Seiter, prominent First National director, summing up what 45 leading Hollywood directors have found out from their experience with motion pictures.

"A screen star must pass the most merciless test—the great close-up lights find out the slightest flaw in the skin," he goes on to say. "But the owner of a skin which can pass this test has the support of an immense adoring public."

It is because alluringly smooth skin is so vital for success on the screen that of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are simply devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. And all the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms.

The Broadway stage stars are equally enthusiastic about this soap, so daintily fragrant and white. And now, too, the screen stars of the European capitals have adopted Lux Toilet Soap! To keep their skin as faultlessly smooth as the American stars keep theirs.

You will love the way it keeps your skin silken-smooth! And such generous lather as it gives, even in very hard water. Order several cakes of Lux Toilet Soap—today.

Mrs. Alec Gibson presented a paper on "Decorating the Dining Room," preceded by a paper on the history and evolution of the dining room from tableboards to the present day dining room suites. The paper was illustrated with pictures of the periods of furniture, ways of furnishing dining rooms in keeping with the architecture of the home, and color harmonies were suggested in the paper.

The need of color in the kitchen was one of the items of interest in a paper on "The Kitchen of Today," read by Mrs. Paul Knappenberger. The paper offered attractive color schemes for the desired lightness in a kitchen, and suggested ideal coverings for the floors, curtains for the windows, and color for the walls.

No. 1 Again

... sat and considered. Then ... to the window he peered cau... over the ledge, and there the ... came to him. It was not ... for he, who should have re... that bullet. From the roof ... parapet on the left to his window was an easy range for a man who could see his target outlined for him by the electric light on the blind; and from the parapet to the Coin de Paradis suite was only a short journey. It was No. 1 again. No. 1 then, who must know of this room. Bitterly he perceived that the hiding place he thought so secure had been known to both his enemies.

He pondered deeply. At any rate he was now safe for a while from No. 1 attentions. The unknown who had fired the shot had no reason to believe he had killed any other than the man he intended. He would not even have known there were two persons in the room: for Sam had spoken in whispers before the shot, and there had been silence after, and even the switching off of the light, which might have betrayed the presence of another person, had occurred so immediately that the murderer might very well suppose his bullet, after finding its mark, to have passed on and broken the electric globe. And the room had been hidden in darkness by the time the blind snapped up to reveal it.

Slowly Jimmie's spirits revived and then a sudden unreasoning panic gripped him again, as he reflected that the spies might yet enter the room from the roof to make certain. Seizing his revolver, he fled out, leaving the bedroom as it was, but locking the door. Outside he felt better. At least he could thank No. 1 for one thing: by killing the half-mad Sam he had saved the very life he was trying to destroy.

Recklessly, his fear still on him, Jimmie took the first taxi that offered and drove northward.

Vic's maid, knowing Jimmie, let him in at the flat door, vanishing as her mistress appeared from the bedroom. Vic still wore the dressing gown, but underneath she now had thin silk pajamas and her dark hair was tumbled about her piquant face.

"Jimmie, what is it?" she cried.

"I—I've come back," he said, "after—after all."

His terror was obvious in his every action, but Vic only smiled a triumphant and happy smile. For Jimmie Rezaire's fear was her best friend. Once it had saved her from prison; now it had given her the man she loved.

* * *

A Change of Plan

It was 9 o'clock. Hyslop had come round after an early breakfast and he and Jimmie were now making final preparations for their expected capture at Victoria in about an hour and a half's time.

With the morning, Jimmie had recovered his spirits, and whistled gayly as he moved about the flat. Sam's death had lifted from his mind the load of fear which had lain there all the years, ever since, exasperated at Sam's selfish stupidity, he had first left him to his fate; added to which he had at last found the love and comfort which only Vic could really give him. Finally, he now felt certain of a successful ending to his self-undertaken venture. For No. 1, secure under the impression he had removed his main opponent at last, would fall ripely into his hands at Victoria. Jimmie was overwhelmingly curious to meet this unknown opponent with whom he had crossed swords so often during the last few days.

In the lightness of heart which had come to him, Jimmie had perhaps slightly underestimated No. 1's intelligence; for at that moment the telephone bell rang. Vic went to it.

"Hullo!" she answered. "Yes. Detective Inspector who? * * * Well, what is it?"

Jimmie stiffened to attention and stole to her side to listen. He wondered what on earth the police could want with Vic. Hyslop also approached silently.

"Yes, I know him." Vic was saying casually, though her face had become suddenly pale. To Jimmie she indicated with a little nod that he was the subject of inquiry, but Jimmie by then had his ear to the extra receiver. He heard an official voice, whose he did not know:

"* * * course you know he's only just out of prison?"

"Oh, yes," said Vic, in control of herself once more. She was far too clever at once to deny stupidly all knowledge of the person that the police were after. There were better methods. Jimmie himself had taught her the value of a well-prepared bed of truth to take the planted lie.

"Seen him lately?" continued the man imperturbably.

The Police Call

"Yes. Quite a lot. He's a friend of mine, you know. He's running straight now. Got into some business which he * * * When did I see him last?" The soil was now ready for Vic's lie. "Why, only last night. Yes, about 9, or half-past, I suppose. Then he went away. I don't know where he's living, but I think it's a hotel in Trafalgar Square. Anyway, I'm expecting him here today, after lunch." Every word bore the imprint of absolute truth.

"Why not? He—he hasn't got into trouble, has he?"

The detective at the other end dropped one laconic word. Even Jimmie started violently. Vic gave a little cry of genuine fear and amazement.

"Murder! Impossible. Look here, Inspector, you know Rezaire as well as I do. You know he's not on that lay."

"I don't know for certain. I admit that's not his game. But in this case * * * Well, he and the dead man—whom by the way is wanted, too—had something in for one another."

"No. Really * * *"

"Anyway, we've got to pull him."

The detective asked a few more questions and then rang off. Jimmie and Vic faced one another with scared faces.

"You did damn well, Vic!" muttered Jimmie. "Why the hell they didn't come out here, I don't know—except, I suppose, they credited me with the sense not to come to you."

After Jimmie for Murder

"But how can they have found out so soon?"

"I don't know. I locked my room and threw away the key, and no one comes in in the mornings till I ring."

"What's the jolly old row?" asked Hyslop.

"They're after Jimmie for murder."

"Good Gad! But * * *"

"Vic!" said Jimmie earnestly, "you do believe what I told you last night? I swear to God some one else shot Sam from outside—and saved my life by it, too. I'm also prepared to swear the bullet was meant for me. * * *"

"Of course I believe," cut in the girl impatiently.

"No. 1 again," said Hyslop. "And I wouldn't mind betting he nipped in to see what sort of mess he'd made of you, found he'd spoiled the wrong face, had a brain-wave and faked things up to put the blame on you. How's that for a guess?"

"That's it!" cried Vic, and Jimmie agreed.

"I'll be able to clear myself in time but it's upset my plans. They'll be watching * * * No, look here," he brightened with an idea, "if we can get to Victoria and hold up our gang before I'm pulled in, we can do all the explaining afterward. It needn't stop us, after all * * *"

"Rather," cried Hyslop, and was interrupted by the whirring of the telephone bell once again."

"Police?" whispered Vic as she took it, adding a moment later: "No, Some one speaking in French! And damn bad French * * Qui est ca? Qui? Marie? * * *"

Jimmie reached for the receiver, but Hyslop was before him. "Ware traps, old boy," he said, and after listening a moment, spoke rapidly in Italian, which he knew well.

"He'll be around here in 10 minutes. He rang up on his way. He says he has news—important, but of an importance for the monsieur who knows about Luigi."

"Good," said Jimmie, biting his nails. "Wonder what the hell's up now! Are we all ready to leave for the station, H. H.? Because we may have to go quickly. I want to be there by 10."

"All ready, old son. And don't forget to take along the ticket for your suitcase in the cloakroom, in case you have to push over to France after your performin' troupe and their lot of machinery, after all."

"Right!" answered Jimmie seriously.

Mario's Information

Mario arrived, bristling with Italian, bad English, worse French, friendliness for Jimmie, and hatred against several unspecified enemies. When he had been calmed he told Jimmie his story, side-tracked at intervals by expressions of delight that Jimmie had not been hurt after being drugged, and by curses directed at Neasden who, it now transpired, had knocked him down in a temper the evening before.

"I bet they were all a bit rattled in that camp yesterday," murmured Hyslop, but Jimmie signed to him not to interrupt.

Mario of course did not know the plans or aims of No. 1's gang. But with the idea that they were engaged in nefarious business of some kind and wishing for revenge he had that morning, but an hour ago, listened at a door.

"The big man was angry. * * * Neasden?"

Mario nodded. He was talking to the girl. There was no one else. The little M. Davis I have not seen for a day."

Jimmie smiled. He knew where the little M. Davis was. "Was No. 1 there?" he asked, still curious about his principal enemy.

"I do not know him. I have never seen him. But he telephoned. He was angry with Neasden, and Neasden was angry with himself. He had made some mistake, and had not found it out till very early this morning. He says, however, he will arrange the affair. * * * Monsieur"—Mario dropped his voice—"there has been a—a murder nearby. But I will help you. Neasden has—how I know not—let the police know it was you—M. Rezaire, eh?"

Jimmie nodded.

"I know. I did not do it."

Mario looked a little disappointed. His hatred of Neasden had brought a romantic attachment for Jimmie, cemented by yesterday's munificent gift. He had almost hoped Jimmie was guilty, and that he, Mario, would be the one to save him from capture.

"But you do not know all. It is arranged—I hear it—that Neasden and the girl and the terrible No. 1 go to France today. From the Victoria station. They believe that you intend to be there, too."

"How the devil did they know that?" ejaculated Hyslop.

"I'm beginning to think we're up against something inhuman," murmured Jimmie. "Or else infernally skillful guessing."

Setting a Trap

"So they have told the police that you seek to escape by the 11 o'clock train, and that they may catch you them. The girl spoke this on the telephone; and she said she was one of you. * * *"

Vic gave a little gasp.

"The dirty cat," she said in a most unladylike way. "As if I would ever speak!"

"Then that's perhaps why the 'busies' aren't bothering to come round here. They're going to let me walk into the trap."

"And that, monsieur, is all I know," finished Mario, striking an attitude.

"Well, Mario," said Jimmie seriously, "I'm very, very grateful to you. I have rewarded you * * *"

"Ah, yes, Monsieur; and my heart it is * * *"

"And I will reward you further, when I have finished with this business. You will come here in a week, and if I am not in prison, I will give you money. As for Luigi—I know no such man."

Jimmie just ducked in time to avoid a garlic-scented kiss; then Mario, dribbling grateful Italian, was thrown out.

"The devils!" said Vic, when he had gone.

But Jimmie, whose brain had been moving rapidly, was looking at his watch.

"We haven't a minute," he said swiftly. "H. H., I simply can't go to Victoria or I'll be pulled and they'll make their get-away clean, before I can explain. Can you have a shot at the business by yourself? They don't know you. And the yard has nothing on you that they know of. Detain the gang; fight them; make a row; accuse them of arson, or murder or whatever you like—anything to make the police intervene, and stop them catching the train. There'll be three of them, according to Mario—Neasden, Zita and our friend the great unknown. Who'll have the Murchison, I don't know. But do your best!"

"Right. I will. But what will you do?"

Off to Paris

Jimmie smiled. "There's a boat-train from Victoria at 10, which I can just catch. I'll be away, with luck, before the police arrive at the station. It goes by the Newhaven-Dieppe route and gets in to Paris tonight at St. Lazare, a quarter of an hour or so before the 11 o'clock Calais train gets in at the Nord. Just time for me to get across and wait at the Nord on the off chance of our friends escaping you at Victoria. Get me? I'm going to back you up in case you let anything past."

He went to the door.

"Good man!" ejaculated Hyslop.

"If you want to get in touch with me, wire the Ritzillon hotel. And if by chance you come over, I'll leave a message there for you."

He opened the door.

"Good-by, Jimmie!" said Vic suddenly in a small voice.

Jimmie came back and took her in his arms.

Hyslop, a nice young man, obligingly looked out of the window and announced that the coast was clear outside.

"Don't worry, Vic, my darling!" whispered Jimmie. "I don't, now that Sam's out of the way, and now that I've got something to come back to. And after this is over, you and I will be rolling in money and you needn't lift another fur coat as long as you live."

Jubilee's Pardner

* * *

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday, and I let Jubilee down out of the window into a sloppy world this morning. The wind was from the south and my aunt said she could almost smell orange blossoms when we were eating breakfast, and my grandfather looked at her and said if she could smell orange blossoms as far as she was from orange blossoms she had the best smeller he ever heard of. Then he said maybe it was lemon blossoms she smelt, because lemon blossoms and orange blossoms looked and smelt alike. Then my aunt said that when his father and mother got married they must have used lemon blossoms, because they certainly got a lemon, and then he said her father and mother must have used blossoms off of a cemetery plant, and then they started to eat steam and found out that my father and I had got all the eggs and pancakes on our plates, so they drank their coffee and grinned at each other.

We all went down to the pond to have a little fun before going to school, and there was a lot of water on top of the ice from the thaw, and we could run and slide and the water would squirt up on each side of our front feet like we were steamboats. The only trouble with it all was that we got so wet the teacher made us go down to the basement to dry off in front of the furnace, and told us as fast as we got dry to come up to our seats. So we opened the furnace door and put Bunt, whose father works in the sting factory and has his old clothes made over for Bunt, right close up to it till the steam and the smell of him could be seen going up to the ceiling, and then we sent him upstairs and when we got up and took our seats and I looked out of the window Bunt was out there setting on the fence in the wind to cool off and the teacher had the windows open.

When school let out and we were going out there was my grandfather and Mush's wife setting on the front step and he was telling her how he won the war and she was telling him that she belonged to the English royal family, and they looked like each one thought the other one was lying. I stood there listening, and then someone emptied a bucket of water on the steps right back of where we were and we all got splashed on, and when I ran back upstairs and didn't see anyone and went to the back window I saw the Log Eau of Tripe going over the back fence, and I went down and me and Jubilee went after him, but we didn't get him. My grandfather had plumbago so bad tonight that my mother made me go to bed early so I wouldn't hear what he was saying about it.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

Madge, at First Sight of Lillian at Farmhouse, Is Filled with Apprehension

LILLIAN was coming down the stairs as I rushed into the farmhouse, and there was nothing in her appearance to warrant the uneasiness with which I had invested her premature arrival. Her face was serene, her eyes shining, but I knew her purse so well that my fears were not at all dispelled by her composure.

Junior had raced ahead of me into the house and flung himself upon her.

"Where is Marion?" he demanded.

"She isn't here," she told him. "She isn't out of school yet. But she will be here pretty soon, and Uncle Harry has something for you. He's out in the barn now, talking to Jim. If you hurry, you can catch him."

"Come on, Rod!" Junior shouted. "Uncle Harry always brings the swellest things."

"I always maintain that men have their uses," Lillian said, looking after the running boys. Then she turned back to me and greeted me passionately.

"You old dear, Kathleen tells me you're standing the strain wonderfully. Ah! Mary, that's the first color I've seen in your cheeks for weeks."

"You mean the first that didn't come out of a box," Mary told her with a gamin-like grin.

"Corrected," Lillian admitted. "But this baby is a pippin. Better run upstairs and let Ned see it before it fades, or Katherine makes him take his nap."

"I'll just do that little thing," Mary said so casually that I had hard work to believe it was the same voice which so shortly before had hysterically told me of Ned's inexplicable actions. But I noticed that as she ran up the stairs her hand went out now and again and gripped the balustrade as if for support, and I knew that behind her gallant front were nerveless trousers.

"Only Here for the Day."

Lillian's eyes followed mine, and when Mary was beyond earshot, she murmured:

"Those letters are still bothering them, I'll wager. Have you figured out anything yet?"

My answer was in the same low tones.

"No, but Mary told me about them this morning. I want to talk to you and Katherine about them as soon as possible."

"You'll have to make it snappy, old dear," she retorted, "for we're only down for the day, and we've been waiting for you two hours now. It would had any idea in which direction to look we'd have followed you, but all anybody knew was that you were going for Christmas greens, and that the Dicky-bird had gone hunting with the two elder boys."

"Margaret!" My mother-in-law's voice sounded imperatively from upstairs. "did you see that performance in the car just now?"

"No, Mother, what performance?" I asked with apparent innocence, although a backward glance as I ran up the steps in search of Lillian had given me an idea of what she meant.

"I would have called you before," she said, ignoring my answer as she generally does when she is in what Dicky calls 'the full pursuit of a subject,' "but I wasn't dressed and though I called through the window nobody paid any attention to me. I thought the sight would leave my eyes. Richard Second and Roderick, you and Mary, too, climbed through the windows of the car and hung from the roof until they got a place for their feet on the fenders and then they jumped. Richard Second nearly slipped, once. If he had he'd have broken his neck. What were you doing that you weren't attending to them, and what were they trying to do, anyway?"

"The bottom of the car is piled full of Christmas holly," I told her, "and I suppose they didn't want to get scratched and were in too much of a hurry to wait for anyone to unload the car first. I think it must have looked worse to you, Mother, than it really was. They all are quite used to climbing, you know."

"You ought not say that," she reminded me caustically, "after that fall of Richard Second's from a tree."

"But this wasn't nearly so dangerous a climb as that," I explained patiently. "But I'll speak to the boys very seriously."

"Humph!" my mother-in-law snorted: "You mean you will if you get time from your precious Christmas holly. I do declare, Margaret, I sometimes think you wouldn't care if the whole family died and the house burned up, just so you could go out and bring in a mess of green trash to clutter up the house with."

She turned and swept majestically toward her room, closing the door emphatically after her. Lillian raised her hands toward heaven and shook them with an exasperated gesture which gave me an unaccustomed relieved laugh.

"And the cream of that joke is," she whispered, "that no one in the house enjoys the Christmas greens as does that same cantankerous old woman. But enough of her. Come up-stairs. I would have speech with thee."

She slipped her hand through my arm and we went upstairs together, I unwarily shaking with apprehension. I knew what busy days these were for my friend and that she would not have taken a whole one to come down to the farmhouse if something of the utmost importance was not upon the carpet.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
